

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

IN addition to the proper records of the Convention of the Burghs of Scotland from 6th April 1597 till 13th July 1614, the present volume contains a collection of Extracts from other Records relating to the affairs of these Burghs, extending from 30th March 1345 to 19th July 1614.

A glance at the contents of the volume will suffice to show the wide range and important nature of the subjects with which the Convention was called upon to deal. The supervision of the Burghs, as regarded the enforcement of their general laws and customs, and the imposition and application of rates for local purposes; the allocation among the Burghs of the proportion of national taxation which they were called upon to pay; the maintenance of burghal rights and privileges against assault from whatever quarter; the protection of the rights and privileges of Scottish traders both at home and abroad; and the negotiation of commercial treaties with foreign governments, and with the municipal authorities of trading towns on the continent, formed part of the recognized business of the Convention; and the publication of these minutes will, it is hoped, afford much important information in regard not only to the internal condition of the Burghs, but to the home and foreign trade of Scotland during the period embraced in the present collection.

On many of those occasions when the Scottish Burghs, or the more important of them, found it necessary to concert joint action, they met in Edinburgh as the Capital of the kingdom, and as the usual seat of the Court, and of the Privy Council, and the only record of their meetings is to be found in the Minute books of the Town Council. Frequently, also, Edinburgh had to make cash advances for the whole Burghs, and these were fully stated in the accounts of the Treasurer of the City. It seemed, therefore, to be very desirable that these and other records of the Burgh, should be examined, and that such materials as they contained relating to the constitution or the affairs of the Burghs generally, should be extracted and printed along with the Records of the Convention itself. The Editor trusts that the contents of the Appendix, so far as these have been got from records and documents in the archives of the City, may be considered worth the trouble that their collection has given, and may justify as well as explain the delay that has taken place in completing the volume. The Editor acknowledges with much pleasure his obligations to Mr Adam, City Accountant, for having examined the accounts of the Burgh, and for having selected and transcribed the extracts now given from that source.

The Records of many of the other Burghs also contain much curious matter illustrative of the business of the Convention, the mode in which its resolutions were carried into effect, the provision made for its meetings, and the hospitalities shown to its members, the allowances made by the several Burghs to their representatives at the burghal parliaments, the cost of travelling, etc. To bring such materials together, in immediate connection with the Minutes of the Convention itself, would, it was thought, supplement and give additional interest to both. With that view, accordingly, an attempt was made to begin such a collection, and the extracts from the Records and Accounts of the Burghs of Dundee, Aberdeen, Ayr, and Haddington, given in the Appendix, are the result. It is desirable, however, that the collection should be made more complete, and be extended to other Burghs, by the co-operation of those who have facilities for examining local Records. Meanwhile it is only proper to state that the extracts from the Records of the Burgh of Dundee were furnished by the late Mr Christopher Kerr, Town Clerk. Those from the Accounts of the Burgh of Aberdeen have been extracted from the selections published by the Spalding Club. The extracts from the Council Records of Ayr have been supplied by the Town Clerk, while those from Haddington have been made by Mr Robb of that town, with the permission of the Town Clerk.

The Editor has to acknowledge his obligations to Mr Gibson of Kirkcaldy, and to Mr Miller of Arbroath, for the trouble taken by them in examining the records of these Burghs. But for the fact that the present volume has largely exceeded the prescribed dimensions, the result of their examination would have been given. It must, however, be reserved.

The Convention has authorised the publication of a third volume, and has adopted the suggestion of the Editor, that much of the formal phraseology of the minutes should be excised, and an abstract merely of the less important acts given. By this means, undoubtedly, the volume will embrace a much larger period than could otherwise be included. But the labour and responsibility of editing will be proportionally increased, and while the Editor does not desire to shrink from the labour he has undertaken, he ventures to hope that a consideration of the multifarious official duties he has to discharge, may secure him the indulgence of the Convention, as regards the time within which he may be able to complete the work.

A Chronological List of the Conventions referred to in the volume and a Chronological Table of Contents, both prepared by Mr Harris, is herewith given. An Index of matters applicable to the whole Records of the Convention, &c., so far as these may be published, will be afterwards furnished.

J. D. MARWICK.

LETTER OF THE CRAFTSMEN OF THE KINGDOM OF SCOTLAND.

MARY, by the grace of God Queen of Scots, to all her good men to whom the present letters shall come, greeting: Know that we, considering that our most noble ancestors, kings of Scotland, always in their own times had respect to the common wealth of our kingdom and the policy to be pursued in the same, and because without craftsmen endued with virtue, good and expert, the said commonwealth could not long continue or subsist, they therefore wishing to adorn the kingdom and the commonwealth, granted diuers privileges to the craftsmen of the burghs and cities of our kingdom, specially to the effect that good order should be observed among them, that they elect deacons to inspect and apprise all crafts (so that no extortion should be brought into use against the lieges of our kingdom, but that all craftsmen should work and labour industriously and honestly in their own crafts, without fraud, guile, or deceit), and that they fine delinquents with rigour, so that if any persons were wronged by the craftsmen they might be recompensed for their losses; of which privileges and liberties granted to the craftsmen of the burghs and cities of our kingdom an abatement was, for certain pretended causes, made by act of our Parliament held in the Court house of our burgh of Edinburgh in the month of June one thousand five hundred and fifty-five, where it was ordained that no deacon should be elected within the burgh, but that the provost, bailies,

CHARTER OF CRAFTSMEN.

JAMES, by the grace of God King of Scots, to all and sundry our lieges and subjects to whom the present letter shall come, greeting: Know that we, considering that our most noble ancestors, kings of Scotland, having consideration and regard for the common wealth and policy of our kingdom, and that without good craftsmen a well constituted commonwealth cannot for any considerable time exist, and for that cause gave or granted many and diuers privileges and liberties to the craftsmen of our burghs of Edinburgh, Perth, Dundee, Aberdeen, and of all the other burghs and cities of our kingdom, namely, and in the first place, that they may choose special men of their crafts for superiors and deacons, to inspect and apprise all crafts, and [that] no extortion should be brought into use against the lieges of our kingdom, but that every craftsman should work and labour diligently in his craft without fraud, guile,

[in] delinquentes suis in artibus qualiaequitati et rationi congruerent ac consonarent; et vt persone per huiusmodi artifices lese compensarentur suis de dampnis; preterea concesserunt priuilegia et potestates probis artificibus, qui liberi burgorum burgenses essent ad nauigandum et mercimoniis vtendum sicuti alij mercatores regni nostri solent cum diuersis aliis et singulis priuilegiis libertatibus et facultatibus ipsis concessis sub magnis sigillis nostrorum nobilissimorum progenitorum per nos visis et consideratis; quibus tamen per actum parlamenti tenti apud die mensis Iunij anno domini millesimo quingentesimo quinquagesimo quinto, ob certas in eodem parlamento expressas et agitatas causas derogando ordinatum extitit, ne vlli decani exinde intra burgum eligerentur; sed vt prepositus et baliui ac consules vnus cuiusque burgi artifices maxime probos et in suis artibus edoctos eligerent, ac vt ille persone visitatores queque sue artis apellarentur et ad Festum divini Michaelis annuatim eligerentur, et vt nulli artifices officium gererent intra burgum in futurum preter duos annuatim eligendos in consilium burgi, cum diuersis aliis restrictionibus prout in dicto acto parlamenti latius continetur; a cuiusquidem statuti tempore nihil ex causis et rationibus que ad id dictum nostrum parlamentum impulerant ad effectum esse deductum accepimus, quinimo omnia apud eosdem artifices hodie remissius quam antea agi; preterea nos predecessorum nostrorum preiuliis dirogari absque magna vrgenti et perdurabili causa nolentes, omniaque ex equo et bono antiquitus

II.—FROM THE ROTULI SCOTIÆ.

ORDINANCE by KING EDWARD the THIRD of ENGLAND that until Roxburgh, Edinburgh, and Stirling were brought back to his sovereignty, the causes which used to be concluded in the Court of the Four Burghs, should be disposed of in Berwick before the Governor and Mayor of the Town. Ex parte communitatis dicte ville Berewici nobis est ostensum, quod cum in regno Scotiæ usitatum sit ab antiquo, quod si per partem querelantem vel defendentem pretensam fuisset, errorem vel falsitatem in judiciis in curia burgorum dicte regni redditis intervenisse, eadem judicia et totus processus in hac parte habitus apud Hadyngton in eodem regno, coram camerario Scotie et sexdecim de probioribus et legalioribus hominibus quatuor burgorum videlicet, Berewici, Rokesburgh, Stryvelyn et Edenburgh mitti, et ibidem rectari examinari et terminari deberent et executiones judiciorum illorum interim remanerent in suspensio. Ac jam pro eo quod homines dictarum trium villarum de Rokesburgh Stryvelyn et Edenburgh cum dictis hominibus dicte ville Berewici propter rebellionem quorundam inimicis nostris adherentium, in uno loco ad hujusmodi judicia terminanda convenire non possunt judicia super placitis in dicto burgo Berewici et partibus eidem burgo adjacentibus motis reddita que sic falsa vel erronea pretenduntur remanent indiscussa et indeterminata, in multorum hominum dicti regni grave dampnum et depauperationem ac exheredationem manifestam; pro quod nobis est supplicatum est super hoc de remedio congruo provideri faciemus. Rotuli Scotiæ,

Tweed, greeting: It has been represented unto us on behalf of the community of the said town of Berwick, that whereas in the kingdom of Scotland it has been the custom from time past, that if it were alleged, either by the party pursuing or defending, that error or falsity had taken place in the judgments pronounced in the court of the burghs of the said kingdom, the said judgments and all process had thereon were sent to Haddington in the said kingdom, and there, before the chamberlain of Scotland and sixteen of the more discreet and lawworthy men of the four burghs, viz., Berwick, Roxburgh, Stirling, and Edinburgh, ought to be put right, examined, and determined, and the execution of their judgments should in the meantime be suspended; And now, because the men of the said three towns of Roxburgh, Stirling, and Edinburgh, through the rebellion of certain persons attached to our enemies, cannot assemble in any place with the said men of the said town of Berwick, the judgments pronounced on pleas raised in the said town of Berwick and the parts adjacent to the said burgh, which are so alleged to be false or erroneous, remain undiscussed and undetermined, to the great damage and manifest impoverishment and disinheritation of many men of the said kingdom; for which we have been besought to provide a fitting remedy: We, not willing that the judgments given in the said town of Berwick and parts adjacent should fail through defect of justice, will and grant that the governor and mayor of the said town of Berwick, who shall be for the time, assuming with them twelve of the most discreet and law-worthy burghers of the said burgh, may assemble at a certain place within the said town to be appointed for that purpose by the said governor and mayor in every year on the fifteenth day after Michaelmas, until the men of the said four burghs can assemble peacefully to decide the said judgments; and all the records and processes brought before them upon which the foresaid judgments so alleged to be false and erroneous pronounced heretofore, or hereafter to be pronounced in suits raised in the said burgh of Berwick and parts adjacent, shall cause to be put right and discussed;—and lastly, after considering the said judgments, shall cause that to be done which according to the law and custom of the said country should be done; the foresaid custom notwithstanding; And

- (1.) Treaty of Peace between the Emperor Charles the Fifth and Mary Queen of Scots. Described in the Inventory of the Charters of the City of Edinburgh [Vol. I., fol. 410] as follows :

EDINBURGH.
Miscellaneous documents.

Extract under the Lord Register's hand of a Treaty of Peace and Alliance and Realifications thereof, entered into by Charles the Fifth, Emperor of Germany, King of Spain and of both the Sicilies, Archduke of Austria, Duke of Burgundy, and then follows a long train of all his other titles, and the most Serene Lady Mary Queen of Scots.

This extract is introduced with an acknowledgment by the said Emperor Charles for him and his heirs and successors ad perpetuam rei memoriam, and made it known to all men : That on the 15th December 1550 at (blank) in Hainault, a perpetual treaty of peace was made up betwixt the said Emperor, Commissaries, and Procurators, and the Ambassador of the said Mary Queen of Scots, with consent of her Tutor and Governor of the Kingdom of Scotland, and the Lords of her Great Council (Parliament) specially deputed for that purpose. And among the rest, it was agreed, That the said treaty should be ratified and confirmed by oath, by the said Emperor and Queen of Scots, and her Tutor and Governor and Lords of her Great Council, with the nobility and states of the said Kingdom, as well in their own name as their heirs and successors, Kings and Queens of Scotland, and their subjects : And the documents of the said ratification and confirmation to be expedite under proper seals the first of May 1551, in the town of Antwerp, by the commissioners to be deputed by both parties for that purpose.

Then follows the Articles of the peace, concluded upon by two persons therein named commissioners for the Emperor, and Thomas Erskine, Esquire, counsellor and commissioner from the Queen of Scotland, with consent and authority of James Duke of Castleherault, Earl of Arran, Lord Hamilton, the Queen's Tutor and Governor, and of the Lords of the Great Council of the Kingdom of Scotland : Bearing, that sometime before there had been heavy discords and war betwixt the said Emperor his kingdoms and lands on the one part, and betwixt the said Queen of Scotland her Tutor and nobility and subjects on the other part, and that the subjects of both parties had suffered great damages thereby. At length for to make an agreement and to restore peace and the publick tranquillity, by the intercession of the most Christian King of France, having power from the Queen of Scotland for that purpose, and the said commissioners having deliberate treaty thereanent, and having read over the old treaties subsisting betwixt both parties, their nobility and subjects ; and specially that betwixt the deceast Philip Duke of Burgundy, &c., in the year 1448, in the town of Brussels, and renewed by the said Queen's father : They, the said commissioners, for renewing and enlarging the foresaid treaties, in name of the said Princess agreed and consented to the following articles :—

Imprimis, That all enmity, discord, hostility, and war, which formerly subsisted betwixt the said two parties, their kingdoms, and subjects, should be forgiven and abolished, and all bygone pretences of whatever injuries to be buried in perpetual oblivion, so that nothing should hurt or stop the sincerity of the present treaty of peace, through occasion of the violation of any former treaties, neither should they, their heirs, or successors, make war by themselves or others upon each other, their subjects, kingdoms, or lands, or upon those who were then under their protection, and not only abstain from all sort of hostility, but also should oblige their subjects to abstain from all kinds of violence, recalling whatever commissions or letters patents, as well reprisals as others, on account of carrying on the war and harming one another's subjects, whether inhabitants or strangers had been formerly given and granted, declaring the same to be void and null, and altogether taken away; so that if any afterwards should, under any pretext, attempt to harm either parties subjects, they should be taken for enemies, robbers, and pirates by either party, and treated and punished as such, and besides the criminal punishment to be inflicted on them, they should be compelled first of all to make good the damage done. And there should be, moreover, sincere neighbourhood and firm peace by land and sea, and fresh waters, betwixt the said Emperor and Queen, and their heirs and successors, and their heirs and kingdoms, governors, subjects, and goods to be inviolably observed, and for ever to endure in all times coming, so that the subjects of the said kingdoms, and lands hinc inde, should safely, freely, and sincerely go unto, enter, navigate, and stay as long as they pleased to the said kingdoms, lordships, and lands, cities, towns, shores, harbours, and bays whatever, without any safe conduct, or general or special licence, and there may buy and sell merchandize, provisions, and victuals, and others convenient and necessary for them, without any contradiction, and might freely and securely go, return, and depart from the said kingdoms, dominions, lands, towns, etc., as often as they pleased, to their own country, or other foreign parts, with their ships and vessels, and their merchandize, goods, and effects; and that they might freely exercise their business, without any hindrance, they paying the duties and customs according to the laws of the land, so that neither their persons, ships, goods, or merchandize should be upon any colour or pretext whatever detained, arrested, or damaged by the princes of either kingdoms, their magistrates, lieutenants, or subjects.

Item, for the greater confirmation of the old friendship, and following of the footsteps of their predecessors, the said Emperor and Queen of Scots (as is more fully set forth in the treaty betwixt James, King of Scots, and Philip, Duke of Burgundy), did mutually embrace one another, with sincere love and benevolence, and should procure one another's profit, advantage, and honour, and should endeavour to their utmost to stop and hinder each other's loss, damage, and hurt. And if, when war should happen to be made by the enemies and adversaries of the one part, who, notwithstanding, are not so strictly tied by treaty, or the strict bond of blood or affinity to the other party, and that party on whom war is made should require help and assistance from the other party against his enemies, in that case the party required shall be holden effectually to give help and assistance to the party requiring, both of men and arms, as of victuals, ships, warlike arms, and other things belonging to war in great plenty, and utmost diligence, as the case required and that they were able to send.

Item, whenever either party should make war, and afterwards for the good and advantage of their country and subjects, were willing to make peace or truce with their adversaries, they might do the same without any stop as to them should seem fitting, so that the other party be comprehended among their friends and confederates, according to the old league betwixt the said James, King of Scots, and Philip, Duke of Burgundy.

Item, If any damage or hurt should be done by the tributaries, vassals, and subjects of the one party to the countries, kingdoms, vassals, tributaries, or subjects of the other, in their persons, or goods, on land or on sea, in that case, that party from whom the damage proceeds, shall be bound to compel the guilty to reparation and restitution, with effect to the party lesed; and that conform to a certain contract and agreement betwixt Mary, Queen of Hungary and Bohemia, and Governess of the Low Countries for his Imperial Majesty, and John Campbell, ambassador of King James, lately deceased, anno 1541, and afterwards confirmed by the said King. And both parties should be at pains that the pirates of whatever nation or kind, should be wholly extirpate from the sea and shores of the kingdom of either party, nor should they be received upon any terms into the lands or bounds of either party; and they should be bound to keep and defend the islands and districts of their jurisdiction against the incursion of whatever robbers or pirates by whom the subjects could any manner of way be damaged in their trading, navigation, and fishing. And of those who presumed to turn pirates, having no certain dwelling, but betook themselves to desert islands, or other unknown places, by whom the subjects of either prince should receive damage, either party at the request of the other, should be bound to betake themselves to common arms, and should not leave off until these taken had suffered condign punishment. And they should proceed in the same manner against their sustainers and favourers, if any such were to be found in either of the princes dominions; and as to the number and quality of ships to be furnished by the said princes when necessity required, should be treated and agreed to, and the fishing and the free use of the sea ought to be duly and sincerely observed, conform to the foresaid treaty the 19th of February 1541, betwixt the said Mary, Queen of Hungary, and the Ambassador of the King of Scotland.

Item, If it should happen (as God forbid) any thing to be done or attempted by inadverting or otherways by the said parties, or either of them, or their heirs and successors, their vassals, subjects, and tributaries in time to come, either on land or sea, against the tenor of this present treaty and league, yet the present peace and confederacy should not thereby be broken, or anyways reputed to be annulled, but the same should remain in its full force, neither should war be moved on that account, but those things attempted and done in the contrary should be repaired and restored to the party leised, and only those attempting or doing the damage, and none others, should be punished in their goods and persons, neither ought there letters of reprisals to be given out, nor those who did not the harm any way molested.

Moreover, the privileges granted to the subjects of Scotland by Ludovick Earl of Flanders, anno 1359, and confirmed by Philip Duke of Burgundy, anno 1394, and the agreement betwixt the deputies of the King of Scotland and Philip Duke of Burgundy, anno 1427, and confirmed by Charles Duke of Burgundy, in the month of March 1469, as also the agreement in the year 1529, and confirmed by his Imperial Majesty, anno 1531, after the form and tenor of the samen, should remain in their full force and strength ; and on the other part, the whole privileges contained in the above agreements, contracts, and treaties, may be lawfully used and enjoyed in the Kingdom of Scotland by all his Imperial Majesty's subjects.

Item, upon the part of his Imperial Majesty, his said commissioners reserved, included, and compounded in this treaty and league, the King of the Romans, Hungary and Bohemia, the Most Christian King of France, the King of England, the King of Denmark and Norway, and the Estates of the Roman Empire : And upon the part of the Queen of Scotland, her ambassador included and comprehended the Most Christian King, the King of the Romans, England, and Bohemia, King of Denmark and Norway, and the Estates of the Roman Empire.

Item, For the more strength of the premises, the present treaty should be ratified and confirmed by his Imperial Majesty, for him, his heirs and successors, on the one part, and on account of the Queen of Scotland's pupillarity, by her tutor and governor, and the Lords of the Great Council, and by the nobility and States of the Kingdom, as well for the said Queen, her heirs and successors, kings and queens of Scotland, as for the said Kingdom and subjects thereof, on the other part, in suitable form, and with an oath, and the instruments of ratification to be expedited under proper seals, and produced and delivered the 1st day of May the following year, 1551, in the town of Antwerp, by the commissioners to be deputed by both parties for that effect, and nevertheless the peace should be firm and sure from the date thereof, and it should be lawful to the subjects of either party to do and to trade as if the said ratifications were instantly produced by both parties ; and the said present peace and agreement ought to be by both parties published and proclaimed in all principal cities and places of their kingdoms, where the same used to be done, as soon as possible, without any fraud or delay.

In testimony whereof, the said Imperial Commissaries, and the Ambassador of the Queen of Scotland, in name of the foresaid, sealed these present letters with their seals, and subscribed the same with their hands, dated at (blank), in Hainault, the 15th December 1550.
